The Community Foundation Mission Statement

The mission of The Community Foundation is “Enhancing the Quality of Life in the Communities We Serve.”

“Hope in a time of Challenge”
The mission of The Community Foundation Serving Riverside and San Bernardino Counties has never wavered... “to enhance the quality of life in the communities that we serve”. After nearly seven decades of our foundation’s existence, we know our mission is still the right one – particularly in light of the severity of the “Great Recession” on our region’s economy. Still, there has been an important change here at TCF – an expanding scope of how we pursue that mission. Our new approach – although it has been a few years in the making and is so sweeping that it affects virtually everything we do as a foundation – revolves around “community leadership” and three words: convene, collaborate, and catalyze.

As always, our core skills and competencies for raising funds, stewarding funds, and distributing funds will continue to be paramount to our approach to our mission. However, based on the industry trends and “best practices” of other community foundations in the nation, we believe that TCF needs to expand into a new core competency: community leadership. Thus, to more effectively pursue our mission, we have chosen to expand our foundation’s leadership capabilities and efforts – which were already significant – to pursue key targeted community leadership initiatives that will 1) convene leaders to address important needs, issues, and opportunities, 2) build strategic and sustainable collaborations between leaders, and 3) catalyze action planning and implementation that will make greater impact on the state of philanthropy and quality of life in the region.

Pursuant to this objective, TCF has launched four initiatives over the past couple of years in the fields of Nonprofit Capacity Building/Philanthropic Leadership, Arts & Culture, Youth Philanthropy, and the Environment. If 2009 is any indication, TCF is already realizing significant traction and support for these community leadership initiatives. Each initiative is already attracting significant partners, donors, and resources towards their targeted goals. We sincerely appreciate the gifts and grants we’ve recently received to support our new community leadership initiatives – with particular thanks to the James Irvine Foundation and the Weingart Foundation for their core support grants.

In addition to launching focused sector initiatives, TCF is also working within our field to convene the 25-30 largest philanthropic funders (public, private, corporate foundations and agencies) of quality of life causes in our region. This newly formed Funders Alliance of Riverside & San Bernardino Counties is aimed at strengthening the philanthropic and nonprofit sectors via improved coordination, leveraged funding, capacity-building, and advocacy.

Based on these leadership activities of our foundation in 2009, in addition to our impactful grantmaking, TCF was selected to receive the Inland Empire “Benefactor of the Year” Award from Goodwill of Southern California. Certainly, this award is one indication that our new approach to our mission is making greater impact for the communities we serve.

The year of 2009 was a tremendous turnaround year in terms of the numbers. Our annual investment performance and operating budget challenges produced by the crash of the economy in 2008. Despite the severe recession and general decline nationally in philanthropic fundraising, TCF is particularly proud that we raised nearly $4 million in gifts and contributions in 2009 (which exceeded our budgeted goal and expectations by nearly $1 million). Additionally, we are very happy to report an overall 25.3% increase to our general pooled endowment funds portfolio (realizing $54 million in assets at year-end 2009).

Over the past year of great hardships facing our region, The Community Foundation Serving Riverside and San Bernardino Counties is certainly rising to meet some of the critical challenges facing our diverse communities throughout the two-county region that we serve. Additionally, the Foundation is strategically seizing every opportunity to broaden and deepen the Foundation’s philanthropic visibility and capacity to enhance the quality of life for all of us.

Despite the drastic winds of change to the region’s economy in 2008 – nonetheless – so many generous and dedicated donors, families, businesses and community-based organizations have ‘risen to the challenge’ and growing needs of our communities.

Please do not hesitate to share your own questions, ideas and suggestions with us (or our staff & board) regarding our Foundation. Listening to our donors, grantees, advisors, partners and communities is absolutely vital to keeping us focused on pursuing the most important work and initiatives for the benefit of our two-county region.

Jane Block grew up in the mountains of Idaho, admiring the gift of nature. Phil Savage III threw himself into environmental concerns upon retirement. He launched a series of listening sessions for TCF.

There’s more to be done, and she is confident The Community Foundation will be there. “I think The Community Foundation can play an important role in our environmental future, as a source of information, as a neutral arbiter, as a reliable conduit for funding for conservation and for funding maintenance of currently underfunded conservation areas,” she said.

Savage always was concerned about the more routine aspects of environmentalism. It was when he retired from active practice of law that he delved deeper into the subject and began discussing solutions with others. Following his “terming out” on The Community Foundation Board of Directors, he was recruited for and accepted co-chair duties of the Environmental Initiative.

His big-picture concerns include America’s dependence on foreign oil and hoping that the nation will lead others in eliminating dependence on fossil fuels. While many environmental issues have caught his attention, he believes the common denominator to a positive outcome is education.

At present, he feels much of what the public sees and hears on the subject from the media originates with vested interests. Here, The Community Foundation can make a difference. “In my opinion, what The Community Foundation can do is to be a convener of parties interested in dealing with environmental issues and help to provide environmental education opportunities for people in our region,” he said. “They are outstanding stewards of our regional environment. We are fortunate to have them on our team and to be able to observe and learn from their example on a daily basis.”

The two have in common the shared passion to keep awareness of environmental issues in the forefront of public consciousness, and The Community Foundation is proud to honor their commitment to environmental leadership. The natural wonders of her surroundings took hold of Block at an early age. Amid that first-hand witness of how nature provided for other living creatures came a sense of awe at the beauty and intricacy of the world around her. That youthful devotion never flagged.

In recent years, she, joined by her husband, Robert, helped establish the Riverside Box Springs Mountain Park Reserve and followed that with efforts to preserve other natural areas. Santa Rosa Canyon (Plateau), Sycamore Canyon Park in Riverside, and San Timoteo Canyon all have benefited from her energies and determination. She currently is involved with helping preserve the Jurupa Mountains in Riverside and San Bernardino counties and Blue Mountain in San Bernardino County. Block also served as an environmental strategist to help plan the Environmental Initiative and address the region wide needs of our region without getting bogged down in local biases and politics.”

“In Jane, Phil and especially Gloria Macias Harrison, our board chair and co-chair of our Environmental Initiative committee, we are fortunate to have three people who walk the walk of environmental awareness,” said Mike Tracey, vice president of Development and director of the Environmental Initiative for The Community Foundation.

“They are three active practitioners of conservation and environmental education,” Tracey said. “Whether it’s utilizing hybrid vehicles, planting California-friendly vegetation, reducing water usage, generating solar electricity, or aggressively seeking solutions for global issues, Jane, Phil and Gloria are outstanding stewards of our regional environment. We are fortunate to have them on our team and to be able to observe and learn from their example on a daily basis.”

The San Bernardino Children’s Health Initiative (SBCHI) and the San Bernardino County Capacity Building Consortium (SBCCBC) have a few things in common. Both are geared towards improving the health and well being of all children in San Bernardino County, the health of the nonprofit sector, and to make life better for underserved county residents. Both have ambitious goals. And both have partnered with The Community Foundation.

The Foundation provides fiscal sponsorship services for the two coalitions as a steward of support for new ideas and to efforts that further the mission and purpose of the Foundation. Because neither group is incorporated as a stand-alone nonprofit organization, the Foundation can act on their behalf by being their fiscal sponsor.

Fiscal sponsorship services include offering the Foundation’s nonprofit status to allow a group to receive tax deductible contributions from donors; applying for grants on behalf of the group; receiving and managing donor contributions according to IRS standards; administrative management of incoming foundation grants; and payment of grants and expenses from an established fund.

TCF calls it “capacity building,” and the SBCHI and SBCCBC are just two examples of the partnership producing near-immediate success and promising progress toward the realization of their goals.

The SBCHI envisions the day that all children in San Bernardino County have access to quality health insurance coverage. SBCHI was formed in 2005, and through its volunteer network of 35 partner organizations, began outreach to enroll youngsters into available health insurance programs.

Progress was slow but steady. In 2008, TCF became the fiscal sponsor for the group and helped SBCHI obtain funding from numerous foundations to support its work.

Since 2008 more than 10,000 children and family members have been enrolled into available health insurance programs through the SBCHI.

In 2007, the leaders of a small group of nonprofit networks and The Community Foundation met to discuss how to build the capacity of the nonprofit sector in San Bernardino County. From this first meeting the SBCCBC was created. This consortium now has over 11 members; four network members, United Way, First Five and county government and represent more than 200 nonprofit organizations.

The goal of the group is to increase the capacity of San Bernardino County’s nonprofit organizations to fulfill their missions by providing a platform for collective action, increased philanthropy and public investment in our communities.

In 2009 TCF became SBCCBC’s fiscal sponsor. This has assisted the group to receive a two-year grant from the Weingart Foundation to develop a comprehensive capacity building project to help local nonprofits obtain funding from Weingart and other foundations.

The mission of The Community Foundation is to enhance the quality of life in the communities it serves. Through offering fiscal sponsorship services, and the ensuing capacity building efforts, TCF is extending its reach to do just that.
The Community Foundation’s Youth Philanthropy Initiative (YPI) is just two years along, but if the above comments from participants are any indication, the program is on its intended path.

YPI was launched with the intention of teaching and empowering high school youth to meet community challenges by making grants to projects that address concerns related to those in their age group.

The payoff: That the seed of philanthropy is planted through volunteering and giving.

The Youth Grantmakers Committee (YGC) of 2009-10 was comprised of 24 Riverside-area high school students. Six were new to the program; 18 were members of the initial YPI set.

Year 2 of YPI began with a two-day retreat shortly before the school year began, at which time members reflected on past goals realized during 2008-09 and established a timeframe for the coming year in training and education; recruitment/accountability; service projects; site visits; and communication.

Early on in the process, youth new to the program quickly learned the gravity of the choices that faced the group, and benefited from the experience of students who were part of the first YPI roster.

Over the next several months, the youth grantmakers met in workshop settings to discuss and compare thoughts on assistance; welcomed guest speaker from nonprofit agencies; made site visits to further involve themselves in the decision-making process; and made the difficult choices of which nonprofits to recommend the awarding of philanthropic gifts.

Thirteen of the two-year “veterans” were graduating seniors, and The Community Foundation began an annual tradition of recognizing graduates’ service and participation by contributing up to $500 to each youth grantmaker’s charity of choice.

Two-year YGC members from their respective high school class of 2010 were Steven Bugarin, North HS; Paul Caporaso, Ramona HS; Kimberly Cruz, Norte Vista HS, Elaine Hanson, Aquinas HS; Leana Hardgrave Notre Dame HS; Magi Gabra, Ramona HS; Tish Mann, North HS; Dylan Maurer, Poly HS; Stephanie Olguin, Norte Vista HS; Kathleen Sawa, Poly HS; Amy Soto, Norte Vista HS; Brittney Sutton, Ramona HS; and Marissa Vessels, Ramona HS.

The YPI reviews are in, and it’s a hit.

So popular is the program, in fact, that interest is growing for YGC boards to be established in other areas of the The Community Foundation service area, including the west end of San Bernardino, the Coachella Valley, the High Desert and the Claremont area.

Looking forward, YPI has among its goals to establish a Youth Grantmakers alumni group that would both keep past members connected to the program and invite them to “give back” to their community and successors through time, talent or treasure.
Over the past two years, TCF launched an important regional arts & culture initiative that has positioned TCF as a much needed overarching regional arts & culture leader and funder within the region. This initiative focuses on providing regional leadership, collaboration-building, and fund development to increase capacity for the arts & culture communities throughout the region. It recognizes the timely and growing importance of the arts & culture sector to our region’s quality of life and its significance to our developing regional economy to recruit and retain the professional, skilled and educated work force of the future. For these reasons, TCF believes that the time has arrived to prioritize and invest some of the foundation’s resources in the region’s arts and culture capacity and infrastructure-building efforts via this initiative.

One of the critical objectives for this initiative is developing private/public partnerships to initiate formal cultural planning efforts in key targeted local communities throughout the region.

In June 2009, The Community Foundation and its partners celebrated the successful completion and City Council approval of a formal Master Cultural Plan for the city of Riverside. This local cultural plan and process has elevated the importance of arts & culture within the city, in addition to guiding its future branding effort as the “City of Arts & Innovation”. Additionally, TCF is currently partnering to develop a Master Public Art Plan for the city (due for completion in 2011).

Since completing the local Riverside Cultural Plan successfully in 2009, TCF Arts & Culture Initiative has been convening local/regional cultural leaders in other local communities of the region (Temecula/Murietta, Morongo Basin, Coachella Valley, Redlands, Hemet/San Jacinto, Claremont, Corona, Mountain Communities, Idyllwild) to explore partnerships and the viability of developing a cultural planning effort within their community.

Most recently, opportunities have developed in partnership with Arts Oasis of Coachella Valley and other important agencies to develop a regional cultural planning process that dovetails with Coachella Valley Economic Partnership’s recently completed economic development blueprint. That plan identifies cultural tourism and arts & culture as one of four key priorities of importance to the region’s future. This circumstance represents a monumental opportunity to unite and synergize the arts community – which has been historically fragmented and non-collaborative – to work in a private/public partnership for the future of the desert’s quality of life and economy.

TCF has formed a formal partnership with the Board of Supervisors for the County of San Bernardino to re-establish a state-local arts agency to serve the two million population and the hundreds of cultural organizations throughout the county (note that the previous Arts Council of San Bernardino County dissolved in June, 2006). The California Arts Council is providing funding support to The Community Foundation for our leadership and efforts on this initiative over the next year. In partnership with Supervisor Josie Gonzales, TCF is currently initiating and developing a new non-profit arts council for the county, anticipated to launch in late 2011.

Finally, TCF is actively working on identifying, supporting, and developing new and vital regional cultural venues/facilities (with the Levitt Pavilion Foundation) and new cultural events and festivals that will increase opportunities, participation, and resources for the arts & culture sector of the two-county region.
The Sean and Kristin Varner Family Donor Advised Fund was begun last year. But in reality, its genesis can be traced back through several generations of philanthropic giving.

In short, to borrow from a country song, “It’s a family tradition.” Although difficult to pinpoint exactly when the family philosophy of community giving was initiated, this much is known: The Varners descend from those who called the Riverside area home in the 1850s, and it is entirely likely the roots of giving can be traced to that point.

“As young kids, we were always taught that our family legacy is to raise people up,” said Sean Varner, managing partner of Varner & Brandt, a legal firm with roots in Riverside since 1873 itself. “We serve our community because we can and it is rewarding to use our good fortune to provide better lives for others.”

The choice of The Community Foundation to administer the fund was made after years of careful observation as to what the Foundation consistently brought to the community. The fund doesn’t pinpoint any specific causes or groups; rather, Sean and Kristin (senior attorney with Varner & Brandt) consider local organizations that assist children, education, or generally those less fortunate than themselves. They also support organizations that enhance the cultural aspects of the community.

Growing up, Sean didn’t have to look far for his inspiration in giving to others. His father Bruce, senior partner at Varner & Brandt, has practiced law in southern California since 1963. Along the way, he has served the community by providing pro bono legal services and by sharing his expertise and counsel on an array of community boards.

That sense of dedication to his fellow citizens did not go unnoticed by decision-makers in high places. In 2006, he was named to the University of California Board of Regents by Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger. Closer to home, and for many years prior to that appointment, his example was not lost on his son Sean.

“Our parents often included us in the decisions regarding the time and resources we gave to the community,” Sean Varner recalled. “Now, Kristin and I do the same with our kids. We discuss with them why we give our time and resources to charity with the hope that they adopt our family philosophy.”

By word and deed, the example Sean and Kristin Varner have and continue to set for their children is that giving is its own best reward. They’re extending a legacy that has existed 150 years. At the same time, they also hope that with each gift, another individual or another family may discover the same sense of satisfaction felt by giving others a helping hand.

“We hope that our philosophy is contagious,” Sean said. “Our hope is that others can look beyond their daily routines and comfort to find a purpose in serving others. If we successfully provide an opportunity, perhaps the beneficiary of that opportunity repeats those efforts and the cycle begins anew.”

Gerald “Bummy” Burstein can point to scores of credits and honors bestowed upon him, but this winter The Community Foundation was the one honored when Burstein endowed a donor-advised fund with the Foundation. The new fund will permanently provide annual funds for scholarships and overall support for students at the California School for the Deaf, Riverside (CSDR).

Fittingly, a ribbon-cutting ceremony celebrating the new fund was held at the Gerald “Bummy” Burstein Student Center at the CSDR.

For all he’s done, and for all he’s given, Burstein remains unassuming despite impacting the lives of generations of hearing-impaired citizens.

“For me, leadership is not just an activity but a way to give back to students and future leaders to open new avenues for our deaf community,” he said. “For all the achievements that I’ve had, I could not have accomplished them without the support of many others. For that it is always important to give back. As the famous quote goes: ‘Tis better to give than to receive.’”

Born in 1926 without the ability to hear but with an innate sense of leadership and innovation, Burstein wasn’t long in making his mark. Bolstered by a strong family support system and the ability to easily read lips, young Gerald enthusiastically participated in his studies and excelled athletically (swimming) and academically (honor society) at P.S. 47 for the Deaf in Manhattan.

He also diligently contributed to his community, as attested by his achieving the rank of Eagle Scout. And that “Bummy” nickname goes back a long way. Like virtually all youth growing up in Brooklyn, young Gerald was a devotee of the hometown Brooklyn Dodgers. So animated was he in following the team in the 1940s that his classmates dubbed him “Bummy” as a backhanded tribute for his love of the team.

The Dodgers were affectionately – or not so, depending on one’s perspective – known as “dem bums” and, thus, Gerald henceforth was “Bummy.”

In 1946, Burstein entered City College of New York, but, after a year, his father “forced” him to enroll at Gallaudet College (now Gallaudet University), a decision that led to all good things that followed.

He thrived at Gallaudet, becoming active in campus activities in the three years he attended. the Minnesota-based school. He majored in education and, upon graduation in 1950, assumed his first teaching position: mathematics instructor at Minnesota School for the Deaf.

After 15 years at the school, during which he challenged himself with “spare time” pursuits varied as learning to fly (he successfully soloed) and refereeing high school basketball games, Burstein obtained his Master’s degree in Administration and Supervision.

Next stop: California School for the Deaf in Riverside.

Over the next 37 years, his roles of educator and administrator at the school, combined with his tireless advocacy on behalf of the deaf, grew his reputation far beyond the school and ranks of the hearing-impaired.

One of his sidelights became a passion. Burstein is an accomplished parliamentarian, and has conducted more than 200 parliamentary workshops. He holds membership in both the National Association of Parliamentarians and the American Institute of Parliamentarians.

At “hearing” meetings, the parliamentarian sits next to the chair so they can converse in confidence on matters of parliamentary law and procedure. Where American Sign Language is used, a different arrangement is necessary. Burstein pioneered the use of a partition – “Bummy’s Box” it is often called – to safeguard the privacy of the exchanges.

So renown are his parliamentary skills that a book (Bummy’s Basic Parliamentary Guide) and video (Bummy’s Basic Parliamentary Workshop) have been produced.

In 1985, Burstein attended a national deaf convention in France and noted that participants “applauded” by waving their arms and hands in the air. His address was received with a standing ovation, and he never forgot the feeling that came over him.

He later wrote that, “The action was so beautifully synchronized that it was just like a sea of waves and almost me seasick.”

A year later, at a parliamentary workshop in Minnesota, he shared with attendees his experience in France, and relayed how to applaud French-deaf style. His audience mimicked the motion, and soon “deaf applause” was spreading throughout America.

One of Burstein’s proudest achievements is his role in obtaining the nation’s first statewide telephone-relay system (TRS). Beginning in 1979, he and other advocates lobbied for the system, and it took nearly eight years for a breakthrough. Persistence paid off, and on Jan. 1, 1987, California became the first state to institute TRS.

Other states followed suit, and when President George H.W. Bush signed the Americans for Disability Act in 1990, about half the states had TRS. Now, they all do.

The number of awards and honors “Bummy” Burstein has received is lengthy, and is best chronicled at CSDR in its newly minted Gerald “Bummy” Burstein Student Center. Forty-five years ago, Burstein began a love affair with California School for the Deaf in Riverside that exists to this day. Although he retired in 2002, his heart has remained with the school and its students, and now, through the endowed fund with the Community Foundation, his name always will be associated with it.

Dr. Herb and Cheryl Fischer take their commitment to furthering education for San Bernardino County youth seriously. And it’s a natural fit. After all, both have extensive educational resumes and long have been front-line players in efforts to increase educational opportunities for San Bernardino County students.

Dr. Herb Fischer’s distinguished career in education culminated in being elected to three terms as San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools. The office provides support to 33 school districts and services to more than 428,000 students.

Dr. Cheryl Fischer went from instruction to administration back to instruction, concluding with a 16-year stint as professor at Cal State University, San Bernardino.

They put their passion into action with the Drs. Herb and Cheryl Fischer Scholarship Fund. Begun in 2002, the fund has increased its scope in recent years, and it was that growth that led to its being moved in 2007 to The Community Foundation Serving San Bernardino and Riverside Counties.

“We benefited from the Foundation’s administrative support and knew the move would insure that the fund would continue to offer scholarships while being managed in perpetuity,” said Cheryl Fischer.

Transferring the scholarships to the Foundation also dovetailed with naming four additional groups to receive scholarships annually under scholarship fund’s banner.

The primary purpose of the Drs. Herb and Cheryl Fischer Scholarship Fund is to help San Bernardino County residents in need achieve a post-secondary education by providing financial assistance for university, community college, technical, or vocational school tuition.

The Fischers feel that having an educated workforce will attract businesses with higher paying jobs to San Bernardino, enhance the economic future of San Bernardino, and improve the quality of life for all residents.

The diversity of scholarships supported by the Fischers includes the Leonard Family Scholarship Fund to assist a student in the nursing program at California State University San Bernardino; the Brutoco-Dutton Family Scholarship and the Randall and Janell Lewis Scholarship Fund, each granting a scholarship to one high school graduate from the Fontana High School District; and an award to a graduating senior at Pacific High School, Dr. Herb Fischer’s alma mater.

More recently, four existing programs were selected to receive assistance from the fund based on the Fischers’ observation of the administration of awards and results they generated. They are the Esperanza Scholarship Fund; the Apprentice Program Scholarship Fund; the San Bernardino Valley Chapter of The Links Incorporated Scholarship Fund; and an annual scholarship alternating between comprehensive high schools in the Colton Joint Unified School District.

Leading the Way, Our Professional Advisor “Champions”

Champions are, by any definition, standouts in the field. In 2008, The Community Foundation decided to honor “Champions” of its own. In 2008, the Foundation created the Professional Advisors “Champions” Recognition Program. The program was developed to acknowledge the important role these advisors play in the success of the Foundation. Professional advisors come from a variety of fields; bank and trust officers, financial planners and advisors, CPAs, estate planning attorneys, and real estate and insurance professionals. To be a Champion, an advisor must either establish an endowment or a fund in their own name or in their family’s name or refer a client how then establishes an endowment or fund at the Foundation.

Since 2008, 28 professional advisors have become “Champions”. The following are just a few of our Champions and their stories. Recently, Neal Waner, Certified Financial Planner (CFP) at Stout & Waner, Redlands and Glenn Tetley, CFP, Tetley Wealth Solutions, Riverside were recognized. Waner worked closely with a longtime client who had worked hard, invested wisely, and accumulated a considerable estate. The client’s desire to reduce capital gains tax penalties combined with past generosity to charities led Waner to recommend a Charitable Remainder Trust (CRT).

“We needed to select a nonprofit we could partner with to make this happen,” Waner said. “That organization had to have the expertise to do this correctly and a lengthy track record and reputation to make sure it worked well for everyone in the long run. The donor did not want to micro manage the details nor distributions, but rather highlight a few charities, outline broad areas of support and then let someone else take care of it. After discussion various options, we decided The Community Foundation was the right fit for us.” The establishment of the trust has helped in regards to tax planning and providing income from otherwise idle assets, the donor takes comfort that, through partnering with the Foundation, specific charities will benefit from his gift for many, many years to come.

Tetley’s desire to go the extra mile originated when he was president of The Unforgettables, an organization that assists low-income families to provide a dignified, appropriate burial for children who died all too soon. “At that time, we wanted to establish an endowment account to leave a legacy for the community,” he recalled. “Now that The Unforgettables is 10 years old, we want to give back to the community that has supported us so graciously over the past decade.”

Thus was born the Unforgettables Agency Endowment Fund, the goal of which is to help fund the long-term sustainability of the organization and to support other worthy causes. Tetley cited the Foundations conservative investment strategy and stewardship as a critical factor in executing the plan. “We considered several options, but it was clear that the best way to accomplish this goal was through the Foundation. They are very established, extremely helpful, knowledgeable, and have an excellent staff and leadership team.”

Other Champions that have recognized include Ray C. Cherry, Vice President and Senior Wealth Advisor at Union Bank in Los Angeles who teamed up with David M. Wilson, a self-employed professional fiduciary from Rancho Mirage who combined their financial knowledge and experience to help form a new scholarship fund at the Foundation. The fund was established in a collaborative effort with the client’s advisors, with the goal to satisfy the client’s wishes for the administration and distribution of the estate. The funds will facilitate grants for education and other community services.

Wilson was no stranger to The Community Foundation, having worked with it for 15 years. So it was an easy call at decision time as to where to recommend the fund be set in motion. “I had participated in establishing two funds for two separate donors with TCF,” he said. “The history, staff, experience, investment management, and sound operating policies of the Foundation offer a great story to share with prospective donors as an option for providing a legacy gift.”

Frank and Marcia Campbell parlayed their fields of expertise and relationship with perfect timing to embellish good fortune previously realized. Frank from Trinity Financial Partners was the clients’ financial advisor; and Marcia Campbell who runs her own independent CPA firm, handles the client’s tax planning and tax preparation.

“The donor’s financial objectives had been met and, with the blessing of a strong financial future before them, the donors found themselves in the position to formalize their charitable intentions,” Frank Campbell said. “While the donor’s charitable intent already existed, prior to this contribution their informal approach was only intuitive and spontaneous.” Once the opportunity had been established, The Community Foundation’s depth and experience appealed to the donors. They were impressed with the level of support and flexibility offered through TCF.

The contribution came in the nick of time. “Everything came together at once,” Marcia Campbell said, “At the end of the year! Thankfully the client was available Dec. 31st to meet with us and TCF’s Vice President of Development, Mike Tracey so the contribution could be accepted.”
